ENDANGERED SPECIES

An endangered species is a species that is at risk of becoming (21) _____ because of several reasons. The first reason could be because of their natural habitat loss. In other words, they're losing their homes. The second reason could be that every individual of that species is being hunted, and there are very few mature individuals left. It is humans (22) _____ are to blame for the problem. Many ecosystems have been exploited and even destroyed by human (23) _____. Humans have also hunted so many animals that the populations of some species cannot recover by natural reproduction.

The natural extinction rate would be from 1 to 5 species per year. Because of the human impacts, the current rate could be about 200 per year. There have been at least 25,000 species in (24) _____ of extinction for the past 3 years. Every species plays a part in the global ecosystem. Also, they are helpful to humans because they provide food, medicines and materials for building and clothing. Moreover, they all have their own unique value and beauty. If we want to stop the current extinction, we need to support the organisations that are working to (25) _____ endangered species and their natural habitats. We also need to stop buying products that damage the environment. This will help to preserve the biodiversity on our planet.

Read a text about a lost prosperous area in Biên Hòa City. Write NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS in each of the blanks.

A LUST PROSPEROUS AREA IN BIÊN HÒA CITY

Trần Thượng Xuyên was a loyal general to the Ming Dynasty in China in the 17th century. However, his army was defeated by the Qing's army and had to escape to Vietnam. His ships arrived in Đà Nẵng in 1679. Trần Thượng Xuyên asked Nguyễn Lord, whose name was Nguyễn Phúc Tần, to allow his family and army to live there and work for Nguyễn Lord's government. Nguyễn Phúc Tần accepted and ordered Trần Thượng Xuyên and his army to live in Bàn Lân, which is Biên Hòa City today. Gradually, they became a part of Vietnamese history, and they were called Hoa Kiều or Người Hoa (the Hoa people) thanks to their contribution to building Nông Nại Đại Phố, which is called Cù Lao Phố today, a bustling commercial centre in almost 100 years in the south of Vietnam.

Cù Lao Phố was naturally an island which was surrounded by the Đông Nai River. At the beginning, few people lived there, and the area was full of dangerous wild animals. However, the Hoa realised its geographical advantages and decided to develop it. The river was deep enough to make it possible for big ships to travel back and forth. As a result, hundreds of big ships from Asian and European countries arrived at Cù Lao Phố for trading, which made this area develop quickly. Many houses of different architectures, roads and markets were built by thousands of people from different places in Vietnam and other countries. One of the most historical buildings on the island was Ông Temple, which was built in 1684. The temple had a unique structure and became a place of worship of the locals. In 1776, Cù Lao Phố was destroyed by the Tây Sơn army, and the Hoa had to leave this area.

Today, Cù Lao Phố is simply a residential area. Although it is no longer a busy area in the South of Vietnam, tourists can enjoy some local religious activities at Ông Temple and the nearby areas in Biên Hòa City every year.
